Loyola/Sir George: new university model revealed

The Boards of Loyola and Sir George Williams University have revealed a model for a new university to result from the planned union of the two institutions. Here we publish the document in full, together with statements from the two Boards and the Joint Negotiating Committee.

I. Introduction

In keeping with the guidelines approved last March by the Board of Governors of Sir George Williams University and the Board of Trustees of Loyola College, the model the Joint Committee proposes is designed to preserve the educational traditions of both institutions that prove academically valuable while creating a financially viable member of the Quebec university system. The Joint Committee believes that it will offer excellent opportunities for imaginative development, and thereby serve not only the large present student clientele of the two present institutions, day and evening, but also the future needs in higher education of the English-speaking people of Quebec.

II. The New University

The new University will be established under the existing university charter on the present campuses. It will take its place as a member of the Quebec university system and participate in the ongoing evolution of that system.

III. The Board of Governors

The Board of Governors will have 35 members, and be formed initially as follows:

- 1) The Chancellor; the Rector; the Vice-Rector, Academic; the Vice-Rector, Administration and Finance; the President of the Graduate Students Association — 5 members.
- 2) Eight members who shall be nominated by the Nominating Committee of the Board from the community at large; four members of the faculty who shall be nominated by University Council; one member who shall be nominated by the Board of Directors of the Association of Alumni; the President of the Day Students Association; the President of the Evening Students Association — all from Sir George Williams University — 15 members.

Joint committee statement

The document, A Model for the New University, has been submitted to the Board of Governors of Sir George Williams University and the Board of Trustees of Loyola College by the Joint Committee of representatives of the two Boards which was charged with negotiating an agreement. The Joint Committee sees it as proposing a sound and desirable structure for the new University.

In recommending this model, the Joint Committee is aware that there will be aspects which may fall short of the wishes of one or other community, or of groups within that community. But the proposed structure is the result of long and informed negotiation and comprises the most satisfactory overall arrangement likely to prove mutually acceptable. It provides, the Joint Committee believes, a good foundation for the new University, while allowing for the Board and Senate of that University to make any changes required in the light of future experience. And it feels that a new University designed along these lines will be fully capable of responding to the needs of Quebec in the years ahead.

In the next few months many groups within the two institutions will be charged with developing the detailed arrangements required to turn the approved model into a working reality. They will base their discussions, as has the Joint Committee, on the 11-point Guidelines established by the Boards last March. Discussions will be opened shortly with the Department of Education regarding both the place of the new University within the Quebec university system and the required financial arrangements. And it is hoped that the formal agreement establishing a new University, enjoying the support of the Government, will be signed in the reasonably near future.

Statement of the two Boards

The document, "A Model for The New University", has been received by the Board of Governors of Sir George Williams University and the Board of Trustees of Loyola College from the Joint Committee of the two Boards charged with negotiating a proposed plan for the new University. The Boards now present it to the two communities for consideration; they hope that it will be widely reviewed and discussed. They welcome the views of members of the communities during the coming weeks, so that they can approve a final version by the middle of October. Individuals or groups who wish to present their views should send these in writing to the Secretary of their respective Board.

- 3) Eight members from the community at large who shall be nominated as the Board of Trustees may direct; four members of the faculty who shall be nominated as the Board of Trustees of Loyola may direct; one alumnus; two students — all from Loyola College — 15 members.

There will be no designated YMCA or Jesuit members of the Board, but consideration will be given to these groups in the nominating of members at large and of the representatives of the Loyola faculty.

Once the new Board has been established as above, nominations of the members from the community at large will be the responsibility of the Nominating Committee of the Board; procedures for the nomination of the faculty representatives will be the responsibility of the Senate; the Alumni and student representatives will be nominated by the Alumni and student organizations as they exist at the time such nominations are required.

IV. The Chief Executive Officer

The Chief Executive Officer of the new University will be the Rector.

V. The Faculties

The new University will have five Faculties. There will be two University Faculties, Commerce and Administration, and Engineering; two Sir George Williams Faculties, Arts and Science; and a Faculty of Loyola College. Each faculty will have its Faculty Council, chaired by the Dean.

The Sir George Williams Faculties of Arts and of Science will provide major and honours undergraduate programs, graduate programs, and an appropriate range of interdisciplinary programs.

The Faculty of Loyola College will provide undergraduate education in Arts and Science disciplines together with an appropriate range of interdisciplinary programs. The Arts department will offer both honours and major programs; the Science departments will offer major programs. Should Science students in the Faculty of Loyola College wish to proceed to honours in a Science discipline, the two Faculties concerned will make the appropriate arrangements. Similarly, as circumstances permit, arrangements will be made for participation by interested and qualified Loyola faculty members in honours programs offered by the Sir George Williams Faculty of Science.

The University Faculties of Commerce and Administration, and Engineering will provide necessary components for both departmental and interdisciplinary programs.

The full-time teaching faculty of the University Faculty of Engineering will be composed of the present full-time teaching faculty of the two institutions. The University Faculty may offer courses on both campuses where appropriate in response to student needs. In 1973-74 all Engineering students will be enrolled in the programs of the University Faculty. Representatives of the two existing Faculties of Engineering will meet as soon as possible to develop recommendations for the inauguration, organization and operation of the University Faculty of Engineering.

The full-time teaching faculty of the University Faculty of Commerce and Administration will be composed of the full-time teaching faculty of the two institutions. Students now enrolled in a Commerce program on either campus will be allowed a reasonable period in which to complete their degree in the program, and on the campus, in which they are enrolled. Further, the Commerce programs now given on the Sir George Williams and Loyola campuses will be maintained through 1974-75.

Representatives of the two existing Faculties of Commerce will meet as soon as possible to develop recommendations for the inauguration, organization and operation of the University Faculty of Commerce and Administration. In 1974-75, the Council of the University Faculty will establish a committee to review all existing Commerce programs; it will report through the Council to Senate, making whatever recommendations it judges appropriate regarding the future programs of the University Faculty.

The University Faculty of Commerce and Administration will offer programs and courses on both campuses where appropriate in response to student needs.

Both present institutions have a tradition of providing inter-Faculty service courses. Inter-Faculty cooperation in the offering of existing programs and in the development of new programs will be maintained in the new University.

Each of the five Faculties will be responsible for both its day and its evening programs, subject to the authority of Senate.

VI. Organization of Graduate Studies

While the present organization of graduate studies at Sir George Williams will be maintained as a University function, the Dean of Loyola College and a member of the Loyola College faculty will be added to the present Board of Graduate Studies. This body will then constitute the University Board of Graduate Studies. Arrangements will be made for the participation of qualified faculty and departments at Loyola in the conduct of existing graduate programs and the development of new programs.

VII. Degree and Diplomas

The new University will offer the following degrees and diplomas:

The Faculty of Loyola College

Arts: B.A. (Honours, major and interdisciplinary.)

Science: B.Sc. (Major and interdisciplinary.)

The Sir George Williams Faculties of Arts and Science

Arts: B.A. (Honours, major and interdisciplinary.); B.F.A.; M.A.; M.F.A.; Ph.D.; graduate diplomas.

The University Faculties of Commerce and Administration, and Engineering

Commerce and Administration:

B.Com.; M.B.A.; D.B.A.

Engineering: B.Eng.; M.Eng.; D.Eng.; B. Comp.Sc.; M.Comp.Sc.

VIII. The Senate

The composition of the Senate takes into account the fact that, besides the Faculties specifically designated Loyola or Sir George Williams, there will be two University Faculties composed of professors and students from the two institutions.

The Rector — Chairman

The Vice-Rector, Academic

2 Associate Vice-Rectors, Academic

Fr. John McCaffrey Loyola's Rector 1948-54

A tribute

by Fr. Henry F. D.
Smeaton, S.J.

When Bernie McCallum asked me to write something on the late Father Jack McCaffrey for the Loyola Alumnus, I accepted readily enough. I was pretty sure that the ideas would come flying and that my only task would be to pluck the acceptable ones from the flock. It has not turned out that way. So I decided that I had gone stale in retirement and that I had better reach quickly for the more alert minds of my hard working associates. They were kind, they were willing, but they were the first to conclude that I had better do my own digging.

Father John was here with us at Loyola this very summer from the 4th of July to this 5th of August. He seemed to be in excellent health. In fact many commented on how relaxed he was, how he enjoyed sitting around chatting with the Community. More than that, he wrote a letter to Father Ed Brown, our minister here, telling him that the month here had been a fine vacation. This letter was received at about the same time as the news of his death.

In retrospect there was perhaps one little incident that might have given us cause for thought. Twice I picked him up at Dorval Airport, once when he first came in and again after a short trip to New Brunswick to see relatives. Both times he was glad to wait for me to bring the car from the parking lot back to where he was chatting with Father Breslin and Father Hodgins. I noticed it, but thought it was simply that he was interested in their conversation. With the stunning news of his death on August 24th, I began to wonder if some of the old elan and eagerness had not already begun to go as early as the beginning of July.

I have not been able to find out much about the circumstances of the death. Father Dubas told me that Father John was returning from the Sacred Heart Convent, stumbled and fell and died shortly afterwards. I presume that it was a heart attack.

Father John McCaffrey was one of the fine group of young students that were so completely taught by the Irish Presentation Brothers at Catholic High School. Several of them became Jesuits. Among them were Father Ed Brown, Father Tom Malone, Father Lionel Stanford and myself. It is interesting to note that Father Ed Brown was Rector at Loyola from 1940-1948; Father McCaffrey from 1948-1954. Father Stanford was Rector at St. Paul's Winnipeg and at Regis College, Toronto. Father Malone and I did not reach those exalted heights. Father Tom died in 1961.

The only years that I spent in the same Jesuit House with Father Jack were here at Loyola from 1949 to 1954. They were interesting years. He was a good Rector. Don't think that this is small praise. In those "good old days" we had to size them up almost as carefully as a kid in school has to estimate his principal or his new teacher. I never regretted listening to his common sense and good religious insight.

The late Fr. John McCaffrey

He had a hard row to plough. He had succeeded a very capable administrator. Remember in those days — less than twenty-five years ago, the entire Government grant to Colleges was twenty-five thousand dollars a year. I remember once at a meeting, when an official from a university in another province was pointing out how precarious was his situation with dependence on tuition for nearly fifty per cent of expenses, that Father McCaffrey reported Loyola's status of counting on tuition for a hundred and ten percent of its outlay. And yet when, after six years tenure of office, he handed over the helm to Father Gerald Lahey, the craft was ship-shape and Bristol fashion.

He was essentially a very kind man, easy to live with, a pleasant companion, a good Community man. He took a great interest in all activities of the College and High School. Some thought him a bit over zealous in wanting to know just about everything that went on, but after a while one adjusted with a smile to that eccentricity. One time when I was coaching a young football team at the north end of the campus, a very pretty and very young little girl asked me who I was, what I was doing there, what my work was at Loyola and did I know her uncle. When she told me her uncle's name, I said I should have guessed.

Father McCaffrey brought the truly great, dedicated coach and athletic director, Bill Orban to Loyola. American football followed. Of course there was criticism, especially from those who perhaps had not recognized that all the High School teams in Montreal had been playing that game for years. Even though the experiment was abandoned after three years, by that time our College teams were so improved that they were invited to play pre-season games with the Universities.

Tennis seems to have been Father Jack's best game. During his four years of College at Loyola he was the manager of several teams. He graduated Magna cum laude in 1928, entered The Order in September, spent three years at Guelph, two at Regis in Toronto, where he took Math at Varsity, three years at Loyola, six at the Immaculate, where he won his Licentiate and Doctorate. He was ordained in Montreal on August 18, 1940, did his Testionship at Post Townsend in Washington State and taught Theology for three years at Regis.

After leaving Loyola in 1954 he filled the post of Shrine Director at Martyrs' Shrine, Midland, Ontario for fifteen years. In my opinion, that is pretty close to the hardest job and therefore the most rewarding in the Upper Canada Jesuit Province. The fact that Father Jack laboured so long in that fruitful vineyard means that he was good at it.

For the four years prior to his death he was Parish Priest in Vancouver. I quote from Archbishop Carney's Funeral Homily:

"He was a good priest. I would like to say a sincere and heartfelt "thank you" to the Jesuit Order for having given Father John and many fine men like him to work through many years now in the Archdiocese of Vancouver."

Alumni link with students for projects

The Loyola Alumni Association and the Students Association have closened ties this years in an effort to create a greater two-way involvement that will benefit both groups.

Executive members of the students' and the Alumni association hope to see several new joint programs initiated during the year, serving to help current students in a variety of ways and give Alumni added involvement with campus life.

A major joint scheme is a coalition work study program that would enable students to gain college credits for outside work in fields closely related to their studies. Modelled on successful West Coast college projects, plans call for alumni to assist in finding jobs for students participating in the scheme.

Another proposal is for Alumni to set up booths on campus at various times during the year to provide a two-way dialogue between Alumni and students. Career planning programs, bringing Alumni to the college to discuss careers with students, are also scheduled.

Joint student/alumni programs are not the only new move by the students' association this year. An overall fresh image is aimed for, reflected by the adoption of the new name (the old one was Loyola of Montreal Students' Association).

The new association is geared towards academic reform, the long standing "social" wall surrounding the L.M.S.A. has finally begun to crumble: the L.S.A. is becoming the centre for student participation within the realms of academic politics. The L.S.A./Alumni program, CEGEP reforms, new grading systems, along with a newly designed course "Student As Decision-Maker" are a few of the products so far.

The L.S.A. is catching a breath of fresh air. "Student representation" is increasing and will continue to increase. Doors are being opened, opportunity is there, the "New" student association has set priorities, one of which heeds to increased involvement from the general student body. Greater representation on college committees means results initiated and approved by students.

Co-Presidents Peter Fedele and Barry Sheehy have already taken steps to ensure greater student participation. Eight vice-presidents have been appointed forming a cabinet controlled by a "majority rules" billing; ensuring equal power and say to all those in the secretariat.

The Vice-Presidents concentrate on assigned areas and have the power to take action on anything they feel has been neglected. They are: Alain Godbout, Education; Peter Tobin, Financial; Mark Tigh, Communications; Lillian Stanimir, Public Relations; Joe Supino, Campus Centre; Don Boisvert, External; Claude Veillet, Internal (co-ordinator); Victor Alinauskas, Special Services.

The general face-lift of the Association includes a tight hold on finances: the financial situation in the past has been one of the definite downfalls of former regimes. Fedele and Sheehy this year have absorbed the accumulated sum of past deficits, in turn hoping to end this year with a clean sheet.

Also new is a colorful array of posters, letterheads and leaflets specially created to make students aware that they have an organization such as the L.S.A. in which to participate on campus.

Golf '72 results

Mythology expert to visit

Joseph Campbell, possibly the world's leading expert on mythology, will be Loyola's major guest speaker during the '72/'73 academic year.

His visit, sponsored by the Senate Committee on Visting Lecturers, will be on Monday, October 16. He will speak in the F. C. Smith Auditorium at 8:00 p.m. on the topic "Man and Myth".

Professor Campbell, an American, has written over 20 books on mythology, including a massive four-volume work entitled The Masks of God. The book for which he is most famous however, is Hero With a Thousand Faces, which has sold more than 110,000 copies, an exceptionally large number for a scholarly publication.

portion to their membership in the student body of the University Faculty.

- 4) The structure of the Council of the Faculty of Loyola College will be analogous to that of the other Faculty Councils of the new University.

XI. The Non-Academic Administrative Structure

The non-academic administrative structure will be based on the concept of total integration, with each service or functional unit having such senior and support staff on either or both campuses as may be appropriate.

XII. Present Studies

Present students of each institution will be guaranteed during a reasonable period on their own campus a course of study for the degree for which they are now enrolled. This would not preclude their taking advantage of the additional opportunities that the unification of the two institutions will open up to them.

All degrees now awarded by Sir George Williams University or by the Université de Montréal for Loyola College will be awarded by the new University.

XIII. Conclusions

The Joint Committee believes that the model proposed will create a dynamic institution, enabling changes to be carried through expeditiously and efficiently. Such changes may arise from operational requirements or they may reflect an increasing measure of co-ordinated development. For instance, the model allows the implementation, should this prove desirable, of department consolidation in Arts or Science on one or other campus, while ensuring that academic services that are judged essential are maintained on both campuses. At the same time, this model offers a solid structure within which the detailed organization of the new University can now proceed.

Fall film series focuses on the musical.

The Loyola Film Series, which each season concentrates on a key period, school or artist from the history of world cinema, will this fall feature "The Musical" as its focus point.

The six week series, running from October 18 through November 22, will present major musicals from the 1930s through the '60s in Wednesday night double features.

One of the earliest films in the series will be Applause, starring Helen Morgan and produced by Rouben Mamoulian, one of the pioneer directors of the '30s. Other movies to be presented include Sweet Charity; Love Parade; High, Wide and Handsome; Love Me Tonight; A Hard Day's Night; Monte Carlo; Le Million; Sous Les Toits de Paris; Gold Diggers of '33 and The Gay Divorcee.

In conjunction with the series Loyola's Communication Arts Department is offering a six week course Hollywood Genre — The Musical, which will be conducted by the noted Canadian-born film authority John Kobal.

A professional actor who turned to writing on the film and film personalities, John Kobal has co-authored books on both Greta Garbo and Marlene Dietrich. In 1968 he also re-edited and up-dated Daniel Blum's History of the Talkies, one of the film book standards.

More recently he wrote a history of the American musical, Gotta Sing, Gotta Dance, which was the source material for a new musical starring Twiggy, the British model-turned actress.

Publications such as Paris Match, London's Sunday Times, the Observer, Esquire, Playboy, Film and Positif have published articles by Kobal and in 1970 he was a contributing editor to the London Sunday Times Color Supplement's extensive series on the history of film.

Recently he has also completed retrospectives on director Victor Saville and actor Ralph Richardson for the National Film Theatre in England, where he now lives. He expects to complete a third work for the N.F.T. — on the American Musical — before coming to Loyola.
